

FREESTAR FINANCIAL NEWSLETTER

As a new year begins, we remain committed to helping you build financial confidence, reach your goals, and navigate whatever comes next. I am grateful for your membership—and your ownership. Our mission guides every decision we make: serving you and strengthening the communities we share.

FreeStar Financial is also part of a broader cooperative that shares ideas, expertise, and solutions to help credit unions thrive. These connections are part of what makes the credit union movement so special. We don't see other credit unions as our competition; instead, our entire industry works together for your benefit. One way we do this is by attending the national Governmental Affairs Conference (GAC) in Washington, D.C.

The GAC is the major annual advocacy conference for the U.S. credit union industry, organized by America's Credit Unions. This is where we engage with federal lawmakers and regulators, raise awareness of credit union issues, and work together to influence public policy. By showing up together, we amplify our voice and protect your ability to access affordable, member-focused financial services.

I look forward to attending this conference each year alongside other credit union leaders. The networking, collaboration, and exposure to emerging innovations help us stay ahead of regulatory and economic changes. This allows us to continue offering better tools, more innovative solutions, and increased protection from fraud.

Having a strong board of directors is another way credit unions protect and support their membership. Because of our democratic structure, you elect the volunteers who govern our financial institution. This democratic structure ensures the credit union is always focused on serving members' best interests, not maximizing profits for outside investors like banks.

I would like to congratulate the vice chairperson of our board, Charles Larsen, on his retirement at the end of 2025. For over 10 years, Dr. Larsen has served as a dedicated volunteer on our board and several of its committees. His key responsibilities have included:

- Setting the credit union's strategic direction
- Ensuring financial soundness and regulatory compliance
- Hiring, evaluating, and supporting the CEO
- Protecting members' assets and interests
- Overseeing policies, risk management, and long-term planning
- Serving as chairperson of the supervisory and audit committees

Because our board members serve without compensation, their motivation is mission-driven: to ensure FreeStar Financial operates in a safe, ethical, and member-focused manner.

On behalf of the credit union, I would like to thank Charles Larsen and our entire membership for trusting us to be part of your financial journey. Your success is why we're here.
